

Dear Parents,

Welcome back! My name is Mrs. Cline and I'll be teaching a variety of middle school math classes this year. I look forward to working with every student and family to help make this year a great year! For math, I am always willing to help each student, but I do have high expectations for each student because I know they can do it.

I would like to take the time to introduce myself, as I am new to Young Scholars of Central PA this year. I grew up outside of Pittsburgh and graduated from Penn State with a B.S. in Mathematics Secondary Education. After graduating, my teaching locations have varied: starting in a high school in Virginia, moving to a private K-8 school in Maryland after marrying my husband, then long-term subbing at State College High School after moving back to the State College area, and now here at YSCP. I really look forward to being here. I also have had the opportunity to coach middle school soccer and track at previous schools. Look below to find out a little about me.

I look forward to the upcoming year, and feel free to contact me with any questions.
